

SUMMER SCHOOL

The Protection of Migrants' Rights in the European Union A Mediterranean Perspective

Director: Prof. Giuseppe Cataldi

6-13
JUNE
2016

Following the success of our first year activities, the Centre of Excellence Jean Monnet on Migrants' Rights in the Mediterranean launches the Summer School

OPEN SEA

on

Migration, Sea Border Control and Human Rights

The event, which will take place from 6 - 13 June 2016, aims to combine scientific and practical knowledge on crucial topics of international law of the sea, migration and human rights law.

VENUE

The Open Sea Summer School will be held in Italy at the University of Naples "L'Orientale" and at the Vesuvian Institute campus in Castellammare di Stabia, which overlooks the enchanting Bay of Naples, not far from Ercolano, Pompeii, Sorrento, Amalfi, Positano and the Isle of Capri. The Institute is an ideal place for Open Sea Summer School since it combines knowledge with the traditions of archeology, history, art, environment, good food and conviviality.

SPEAKERS

Among the confirmed speakers there are members of international Organizations and EU Agencies (Frontex), public officers, practitioners, Non-governmental organizations (Human Rights at Sea) and, of course, academics from various prestigious European Universities.

Language: English

The OPEN SEA Summer School will be credited by the Department of Human sciences of the University of Naples "L'Orientale" with ECTS (European Credit Transfer and Accumulation System) credits.
